3. Calculation of the state support amount

The amount of state support provided for more than 1 year, for each form of state support specified in the Law, is calculated taking into account the discount rate according to a certain formula.

The discount rate of state support is determined taking into account the cost of government borrowing at the current yield of long-term foreign government bonds with the longest maturity in the relevant currency on the date of the discount rate determination (date of feasibility study preparation), and in the absence of such securities in the relevant currency – at the yield of domestic government bonds with the longest maturity on the date of the discount rate determination in the relevant currency.

In the absence of foreign government bonds and domestic government bonds in the relevant currency, state support calculations are made in UAH equivalent using the official exchange rate of hryvnia to the relevant currency as of the settlement date and the discount rate for hryvnia is used.

When calculating the total amount of state support, it is taken into account that the planned amount of significant investments in the investment project includes all funds (own and/or borrowed) that will be invested in the investment object during the project under the special investment contract, and doesn't include reinvestments that will be made at the expense of income received from operating activities during the project implementation.
