

Lurii Dynys joins DLF Ukraine as Counsel

DLF attorneys-at-law enhanced the agribusiness practice with a new senior team member, Counsel and attorney-at-law, Lurii Dynys. Lurii will also head the firm's banking law practice.

Lurii Dynys has over 20 years of experience providing legal support to businesses in the banking, investment, and agriculture sectors, as an independent legal adviser and chief legal officer in banks and agribusiness holding companies in Ukraine.

"Extensive experience allows Lurii to deeply understand the business realities and the practical needs of both Ukrainian and foreign clients. We are confident that Lurii Dynys' expertise will help bring our legal services to a new higher standard and enable our clients to safely and effectively invest in Ukrainian agribusiness," says Managing Partner, Igor Dykunskey.

Ukraine is a European country that is particularly suitable for agribusiness. It boasts huge land capacities, an advantageous geographical location, ideal natural conditions and soil characteristics, and long-standing farming traditions that make Ukraine extremely attractive, in terms of investing in agricultural production.

DLF team offers many of years of practical experience, providing effective and all-round assistance for the establishment and operation of agricultural enterprises in Ukraine. DLF lawyers have an in-depth understanding of their clients' needs, arising from their business activities. They know agribusiness from the inside out, and offer only the most efficient solutions.

DLF attorneys-at-law help foreign and domestic legal entities to effectively use the available legislative tools to their advantage, taking into account regional risks and the peculiarities of each individual case. With Lurii Dynys heading the agribusiness and banking law practices, DLF will be able to level up its legal services and reach new clients in the field. Lurii will lead all agribusiness-related issues, M&A, financing, and corporate structuring.
