

The promise of tomorrow in Ukraine: Iurii Dynys for CEE Legal Matters

We are pleased to share that Iurii Dynys, Counsel and Head of Banking & Finance and Agribusiness at DLF attorneys-at-law Ukraine, was recently featured in an in-depth interview published by CEE Legal Matters.

In the interview, titled "The Promise of Tomorrow in Ukraine," Iurii provided his expert perspective on how Ukraine's legal market is adapting to the realities of war while preparing for post-war reconstruction and the emergence of new business opportunities.

Key highlights from the discussion include:

- Sustained demand for core legal services: despite the ongoing conflict, businesses continue to require comprehensive legal support in various areas, including banking, finance, and agriculture.
- Focus on resilience and future growth: companies are increasingly prioritising strategic planning for Ukraine's recovery and exploring new sectors that are likely to gain momentum in the years ahead.
- Navigating an uncertain investment climate: Iurii emphasised the importance of balancing short-term operational challenges with long-term investment considerations, particularly as international partners evaluate the risks and opportunities of doing business in Ukraine.

Reflecting on the current situation, Iurii noted:

"Even in the face of unprecedented disruption, there is a clear sense of determination among Ukrainian businesses and international stakeholders. Legal advisors have a vital role to play in helping clients protect their operations today while laying the groundwork for tomorrow's growth."

We thank CEE Legal Matters for highlighting these important conversations and providing a platform to discuss how the Ukrainian legal community is responding to the historic challenges the country is facing.
